Lesson 1

TECHNIQUES AND PERFORMANCE PRACTICES

What's New

Overview

A work of art is the skillful manipulation of a medium to express an idea or an experience. For a work of art to be perceived by the senses, it must have a physical manifestation. The medium is the substance that is manipulated, while technique describes the skillful manipulation of the medium. The technique may utilize tools or technology.

What is It

There are new techniques that define an art movement. For contemporary arts, the following are a few of these techniques:

1. Minimalism

One of the most important and influential art styles of the 1960s, Minimalism identifies works of art most often comprised of geometric shapes in simple arrangements and lacking any decorative or dynamic flourishes. These geometric shapes characterized the elemental or “bare bones” forms of art, which, according to critics, represented the culmination of modern art's progression toward the most simplified form of abstract art possible.

It is a movement in various forms of art and design, especially visual art and music, where the work is set out to expose the essence, essentials or identity of a subject through eliminating all non-essential forms, features or concepts. It is characterized by simplicity.

2. Cubism

It was a truly revolutionary style of modern art developed by Pablo Picasso and Georges Braques. It was the first style of abstract art which evolved at the beginning of the 20th century in response to a world that was changing with unprecedented speed. Cubism was an attempt by artists to revitalize the tired traditions of Western art which they believed had run their course. The Cubists challenged conventional forms of representation, such as perspective, which had been the rule since the Renaissance. Their aim was to develop a new way of seeing which reflected the modern age.

3. Social Realism

It is the realistic depiction in art of contemporary life, as a means of social or political comment.

4. Found objects

They originate from the French objet trouve, describing art created from undisguised, but often modified, objects or products that are not normally considered materials from which art is made, often because they already have a non-art function.

In modern art, the term "found object" is used to describe an object, found by an artist, which - with minimal modification - is then presented as a work of art. The idea is, that the artist believes that the discovered object possesses a certain aesthetic quality - stemming from its appearance, social or personal history - and therefore displays it for the appreciation of others.

Typical "found objects" include natural materials like sand, earth, stones, shells, curiously shaped pieces of wood, a human skull; or man-made items such as newspaper cuttings, photographs, pieces of glass, fragments of scrap metal, pieces of textile fabric, an unmade bed, a bicycle handlebars, and so on.

4. Large scale art – artists have produced works that play with scale.

5. Digital application - It comes with augmented reality technology and transforms Filipino digital artworks into immersive experiences
